

The Art of leading in participatory ways

Hosting conversations that matter

Why and how could participatory leadership make a difference in my work?

Get Yourself Inspired!

For experiencing, learning and hosting conversations that matters in order to create real and substantial results!

You are invited to a half day workshop to learn about the essence of participatory leadership and gain a taste of what a 3-day Art of Participatory Leadership workshop is.

Why should I be interested?

The Story

Participation and staff involvement are crucial issues for managers, leaders, entrepreneurs, HR professionals – with change and challenge on every side, innovation is needed from within organizations. But how can we achieve that when resources are tight and when time is of the essence? How many meetings have you been to where key people sit together and nothing really seems to happen?

What if meetings were a place where people come together to get really engaged, charged up and innovative about the challenges they're facing and the work they have to do? What if we could shift to a higher quality of meaningful dialogue that really makes a difference in our work, our organizations and our lives in general?

Grow your ability to make a positive contribution as a leader, an organizer, a manager, an employee or a citizen in these challenging economic and social times.

This half day workshop will provide participants with an introduction to a range of participatory approaches such as Open Space Technology, World Café, Circle practice and Appreciative Inquiry that can be used to develop a more inclusive approach to design-making and general management issues. The event will focus on how to tap into the wisdom and resources of groups in order to create and facilitate powerful conversations that lead to useful and implementable results.

Purpose of the Day

- Provide an introduction to the art of hosting conversations, via experiential learning
- Provide an understanding of the various participatory leadership methods and practices
- Provide the space to reflect on how these processes might be applied to your everyday work
- Share experiences and stories on how it works different contexts and complex systems
- Provide learning of basic participatory leadership principles which can be used immediately
- Talk about perspectives, needs and questions connected to the next level

Who is this for?

We invite leaders, managers, politicians, entrepreneurs, teachers, social innovators, facilitators, community and youth workers... Anyone who wants to experience a different perspective of leadership which shift our patterns of organizing and interacting, grounds meaningful actions, sets free other people's creative and intelligence in order to achieve real involvement, better cooperation and sustainable results together.